

Behavioral health case management services are available to all AHCCCS members as medically necessary.

Case management is a supportive behavioral health service that uses communication and resource coordination to improve treatment outcomes and achieve long term recovery goals. For example, case management might include:

- Help finding resources other than behavioral health services (e.g., housing/shelter, food, utilities, etc.),
- Coordinating a member's care with health care providers, family, community resources, and other educational, social, judicial, community, and state services,
- Monitoring treatment goals and updating the service plan,
- Referring members to behavioral health specialists (e.g., employment services, Peer Support services, Family Support services, unskilled respite care, etc.), and
- Help accessing community resources with meeting basic needs.

AHCCCS members* who receive behavioral health services can also receive case management services in most outpatient behavioral health provider locations where other supportive services such as Home Care Training Family (Family Support) and Self-Help/Peer Services (Peer and Recovery Support) are available. Whether or not you have a case manager, you can still request to receive case management services to meet your needs.

If an AHCCCS member needs additional supportive services, they should speak to a staff member of the clinical team or a case manager (if one has not been assigned) at the outpatient behavioral health provider where the member receives service. If approved, case management services (and specific case management supportive services such as finding food, transportation, housing/shelter and education) will be added to the member's Individual Service Plan (ISP).

To learn more about case management services and how to connect to these services please contact your Health Plan found on the back of your insurance card or on the back of this page.

*Individuals who are not AHCCCS eligible (Non-Title XIX/XXI) may qualify to receive case management services.
